Introduction

What you will find in this report

This report contains the results of the 360-degree feedback collected from a combination of yourself, management, and peers. These results are presented in a variety of formats to help you identify your strengths, areas for development, and areas where your ratings may diverge from those of the individuals providing you feedback. Please recognize the time and effort your respondents put into providing you with this feedback, be open to their opinions, and be willing to use their feedback as a starting point for your learning and development.

Goals of the 360 Degree Feedback

1. Increased mindfulness
2. Greater awareness of the leadership and management competencies the company is seeking to develop
3. Greater clarity about strengths to build on and areas to improve
4. Improved goal-setting for personal and professional development
5. More frequent and open communication between yourself and others about what is working well and what needs to be improved
6. Increased comfort with seeking and receiving feedback
7. Increased comfort with giving feedback

Receiving Feedback

Hearing from others how they perceive you is challenging for everyone, especially if their perceptions are different from your own. Remember that their feedback is as much about them as about you. At the same time, others' perceptions of you form the real basis of your relationships. It is a precious gift to learn from others how they perceive you, for with that information you can begin to improve your relationships and teamwork on a truly solid foundation. Give your emotional responses to the feedback time to evolve and settle down, then begin the process of making sure you understand what others are saying.

What is Feedforward and What to Do with Your Feedforward

Feedforward is the reverse exercise of feedback. It's the process of replacing positive or negative feedback with future-oriented solutions. In simple terms, it means focusing on the future instead of the past. During the upcoming Leadership sessions, you will have an extended opportunity to work with your coach to interpret your feedback and to begin to prioritize improvements you want to make.

At the end of the sessions, you will have dedicated time to factor these priorities into other session learnings to set a few focused, high-leverage goals and begin to think about how you will pursue those goals.

After the sessions, you should work with your coach to work on that pursuit.

You are encouraged to communicate further with your respondents, both to clarify the meaning of the feedback they have given you and to solicit their support on your self-development journey. Even when people have not self-identified, you can conduct general conversations in which you share what you've learned and seek their further feedforward.

Summary

The questionnaire items used in this feedback process asked respondents to rate 5 competencies of leadership and management. Summary scores for each item were calculated by averaging the scores of all your respondents to that item. Your scores for the items in each competency are shown in the bar graph below, with the highest-scored competencies at the top. Your competencies that received the lowest scores appear at the bottom of the graph.

Scores by Competency

The results in this report are based on responses collected from individuals in different roles. This table shows the number of responses from individuals in different roles.

These different roles provide different perspectives on your behaviors, competencies, and attributes. And, of course, the perspectives of individuals in each role may be unique.

Gap Analysis

The following table graphically displays the "Gap," or difference between your average rating on each competency (labeled "Self") and the average score of all other respondents (labeled "Others") who provided you with feedback. This can help you identify blind spots, or areas where you were rated more favorably by other respondents than by yourself. The Gaps for these competencies are colored in shades of green. Conversely, the graph can also help you identify your opportunities for improvement, or areas where you rated yourself higher than others did. The Gaps for these dimensions are colored in shades of red. The darker the shade of green or red, the larger the Gap. Finally, if a dimension's Gap is not shaded with a specific color, it indicates an area of agreement between yourself and others.

Managing Performance

Defintion:

Manages the performance of subordinates. Plans and sets goals and performance expectations for work outcomes; determines measures of performance and communicates those expectations to the employee. Measures and monitors performance and conducts regular performance reviews using standardized performance measures. Recognizes and rewards performance that exceeds expectations and implements remedial actions if necessary.

Why it is important:

Performance Management is an important supervisory skill that impacts business operations by setting expectations for achieving superior performance. It provides a framework for measuring work and motivating employees to achieve goals consistent with the organization's mission and values.

Statements for Level:

Effectively uses the current performance review process.

Establishes indicators to measure levels of performance.

Analytical

Defintion:

Analytical skills are the ability to think critically, be open-minded, and reduce complex issues into more manageable parts. The ability to collect, validate, and analyze data is important for making decisions, forecasting, and developing models. Attention to detail and a willingness to work with quantitative data are needed. Having a good understanding of systems, how to present data, and how to conduct research is useful. Analytical skills also require a certain degree of curiosity.

Why it is important:

Analytical skills are crucial in business because they enable professionals to make informed decisions based on data. This not only helps in identifying trends and opportunities but also mitigates risks. With strong analytical skills, businesses can forecast future scenarios, optimize operations, and develop effective strategies. Attention to detail and a good understanding of systems ensure that decisions are precise and well-founded. Curiosity is a driver of continuous improvement and innovation, keeping businesses competitive in a rapidly changing market. Without analytical skills, businesses might rely on intuition rather than evidence, which can lead to costly mistakes and missed opportunities.

Statements for Level:

Makes reasonable decisions about the importance of different sources of information.

Identifies trends and patterns in data can lead to valuable insights and strategic decisions.

Organizes data in a way that simplifies its interpretation and comparisons.

Analyzes issues and reduces them to their component parts.

Vision

Defintion:

Vision is the ability to craft and communicate a compelling, aspirational direction that aligns people, strategy, and culture toward a shared future. It integrates foresight and problem identification to anticipate challenges, while translating long-term goals into actionable plans through both personal execution and team empowerment. Visionary leaders inspire and influence others by modeling consistency, celebrating progress, and fostering a growth-oriented environment that reflects organizational values. Through strategic clarity and motivational leadership, vision becomes a unifying force that drives innovation, alignment, and sustained performance.

Why it is important:

Vision, as defined through its multifaceted dimensions, is essential because it provides organizations with a coherent and compelling sense of direction that integrates strategy, culture, and execution. It aligns individuals and teams around shared long-term goals, enabling consistent decision-making even amid complexity or change. By inspiring commitment, fostering growth, and translating ambition into actionable plans, vision becomes the engine that drives innovation, resilience, and sustained performance. Without it, organizations risk fragmentation, short-termism, and a loss of purpose--making vision not just a leadership trait, but a strategic necessity.
