Introduction

What you will find in this report

This report contains the results of the 360-degree feedback collected from a combination of yourself, management, and peers. These results are presented in a variety of formats to help you identify your strengths, areas for development, and areas where your ratings may diverge from those of the individuals providing you feedback. Please recognize the time and effort your respondents put into providing you with this feedback, be open to their opinions, and be willing to use their feedback as a starting point for your learning and development.

Goals of the 360 Degree Feedback

1. Increased mindfulness
2. Greater awareness of the leadership and management competencies the company is seeking to develop
3. Greater clarity about strengths to build on and areas to improve
4. Improved goal-setting for personal and professional development
5. More frequent and open communication between yourself and others about what is working well and what needs to be improved
6. Increased comfort with seeking and receiving feedback
7. Increased comfort with giving feedback

Receiving Feedback

Hearing from others how they perceive you is challenging for everyone, especially if their perceptions are different from your own. Remember that their feedback is as much about them as about you. At the same time, others' perceptions of you form the real basis of your relationships. It is a precious gift to learn from others how they perceive you, for with that information you can begin to improve your relationships and teamwork on a truly solid foundation. Give your emotional responses to the feedback time to evolve and settle down, then begin the process of making sure you understand what others are saying.

What is Feedforward and What to Do with Your Feedforward

Feedforward is the reverse exercise of feedback. It's the process of replacing positive or negative feedback with future-oriented solutions. In simple terms, it means focusing on the future instead of the past. During the upcoming Leadership sessions, you will have an extended opportunity to work with your coach to interpret your feedback and to begin to prioritize improvements you want to make.

At the end of the sessions, you will have dedicated time to factor these priorities into other session learnings to set a few focused, high-leverage goals and begin to think about how you will pursue those goals.

After the sessions, you should work with your coach to work on that pursuit.

You are encouraged to communicate further with your respondents, both to clarify the meaning of the feedback they have given you and to solicit their support on your self-development journey. Even when people have not self-identified, you can conduct general conversations in which you share what you've learned and seek their further feedforward.

Vision

Defintion:

Vision is the ability to craft and communicate a compelling, aspirational direction that aligns people, strategy, and culture toward a shared future. It integrates foresight and problem identification to anticipate challenges, while translating long-term goals into actionable plans through both personal execution and team empowerment. Visionary leaders inspire and influence others by modeling consistency, celebrating progress, and fostering a growth-oriented environment that reflects organizational values. Through strategic clarity and motivational leadership, vision becomes a unifying force that drives innovation, alignment, and sustained performance.

Why it is important:

Vision, as defined through its multifaceted dimensions, is essential because it provides organizations with a coherent and compelling sense of direction that integrates strategy, culture, and execution. It aligns individuals and teams around shared long-term goals, enabling consistent decision-making even amid complexity or change. By inspiring commitment, fostering growth, and translating ambition into actionable plans, vision becomes the engine that drives innovation, resilience, and sustained performance. Without it, organizations risk fragmentation, short-termism, and a loss of purpose--making vision not just a leadership trait, but a strategic necessity.

Statements for Level:

Detects problems and creates solutions.; Is able to diagnose issues and problems and to create a vision for their solutions.; Shapes the department's vision into actionable goals.; Aligns subordinates' work with the vision's critical priorities.; Ensures that messaging about the vision remains clear, stable, and free from contradiction.

Strategic Focus

Defintion:

Strategic focus is the ability to analyze complex challenges, determine the best approach to achieving organizational goals, and proactively address risks that impact operations. It involves scanning internal and external environments, formulating corporate-level strategies, and aligning projects with the company's vision, mission, and values to ensure long-term success. Effective strategic focus mobilizes leadership to implement change, coordinate cross-functional teams, and leverage SWOT analysis to refine decision-making and drive sustainable growth.

Why it is important:

Strategic focus is crucial for organizations because it helps them navigate complex challenges, optimize resources, and align business initiatives with long-term objectives. By continuously monitoring risks and opportunities, refining corporate strategies, and mobilizing leadership-driven change, companies can remain competitive and adaptable in evolving markets. A strong strategic focus ensures teams work cohesively toward shared goals, fostering sustainable growth, operational efficiency, and informed decision-making.

Statements for Level:
